

Garage Reinventing The Place We Work By Kira Obolensky

"Synopsis A celebration of one of the most versatile rooms not in the house, presenting design ideas, floor plans and creative inspiration to create your own unique space. The garage need not be just the place where you park your car: with some creative thinking it can be turned into a valuable utility, leisure or money-making space. This book presents in full colour over 50 real garages which have been converted and explains how they their basic forms and functions were changed to provide creative options for modern living. Æber den Autor und weitere Mitwirkende Kira Obolensky has written for print, film, and stage. She co-authored Sarah Susanka's national bestseller, 'The Not So Big House. Kira's book, 'Garage, was published in 2001. She has received a number of writing awards and fellowships, including the Kesselring Prize and a Guggenheim fellowship.
